City of Vernon responds to CBC News story

A recent CBC News report indicated that the City is involved in an arbitration process with two former employees.

While the City's policy is to not comment on personnel matters, it is important to clarify that the incident did not involve two firefighters, as reported. Rather, the incident occurred between a firefighter and another employee of the fire service.

Because this incident is before an arbitration panel, no additional information will be made available from the City at this time.
